TRENCH MEDICINES, prepared by GRIMAULT and CO., Chemists to H. I. H. Prince Napoleon, Paris. These different medicines represent the most recent medical discongents, formed on the principles of chemistry and therapeulica. They must not be confounded with secret or quack medicines, as their manes sufficiently indiscote that composition; a circumatume which has caused than to be appreciated and prescribed by the faculty in the whole world. They widely differ from those manerous medicines advertised in the public papers as able to cure every possible disease, as they are applicable only to but a very few complaints. The most stringent laws exist in Persnee with regard to the sale of medical proparations, and only those which have undergone an examination by the Academy of Misurins, and have been proved efficacious, either in the hospitals or in the practice of the first medical men, are authorised by the Government. This fact must be a guarantee for the excellency of Messre.

DOCTOR LERAS: Street of Medicine Liquid Physics.

POCTOR LERAS (Doctor of Medicine) Liquid Phosphate of Iron. The newest and most estectard medicine in cases of chlorosis, pains in the stomach, difficult digestion, diamenor-thee, animes, general debility and poorness of blood. It is particularly recommended to regulate the functions of nature, and to all ladies of delicate constitution as well as to persons suffering under every kind of debility whatsoever. It is the presegvative of health PAR EXCELLENCE, in all wurm and relaxing climates.

No more Cod-liver Oil.—GRIMAULI'S SYRUP OF IODISED HORSERADISH—This medicine has been administered with the utmost auccess in the hospitals of Faris. It is a perfect substitute for cod-liver oil, and has been found most beneficial in diseases of the chest, scrofula, lymphatic disorders, green-sickness, muscular stony, and loss of appetite. It regenerates the constitution in purifying the blood, it being the most powerful depurative known. It has also been applied with happy results in diseases of the skin. Further, it will be found to be of great benefit to young claidren subject to humours and obstruction of the giands.

Consumption cured!—GRIMAULT'S SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITE OF LIME.—This new medicine is considered to be a sovereign remedy in cases of consumption and other diseases of the lungs. It promptly removes all the most serious symptoms. The cough is relieved, night perspirations conse, and the patient is rapidly restored to health. N.B.—Be sure to see that the signature of Grimault and Co. is affixed to the bottle, as this syrup is liable to imitations.

No more Difficult or Painful Digestion.—Dr. BURIN DU BUISSON'S (LAUREATE OF THE PARIS IMPERIAL ACADEMY OF MEDICINE) DIGESTIVE LOZENGES.—This delicious preparation is always prescribed by the most reputed medical men in France, in cases of derangements of the digestive functions, such as Gastritis, Gastragis, long and laborious digestion, wind in the atomach and bowels, emaciation, jaundice, and compleints of the liver and loins.

Nerveus Head Aches, Neuralgia, Diarrhees, Dysentary, instantaneously cured by GRIMAULT'S GUARANA.—
This vegetable substance which grown in the Brazila, has been employed since time immemorial to cure inflammation of the lowels. It has proved of late to be of the greatest service in cases of Cholera, as it is a preventive and a cure in cases of Diarrhees.

No more Diseases of the Skin.—Dr. CAZENAVE'S P1LLS.—The efficacy of these pills has been found after twenty years of experience in the hospital of Saint-Louis in Paris, under the direction of Professor Cazenave. This hospital is especially devoted to the cure of skin diseases.

No more Dyspessia, Vomiting during Prognancy, or Sea Sickness. GRIMAULT'S ELIXIR OF PRESINE.—Pepsine undergoes no alteration in this delicious preparation. It will consequently be preferred to Pepsine Powders or Pills. It is the digestive medicine par excellence, and is at the same time a most agreeable table liqueur. Messra, Grimault beg to call the attention of the faculty and of the public in general to the fact that real popsine is prepared in France alone. It is far superior to all others often extracted from the atomach of porci.

INTERNAL OR LOCAL NEW CURATIVE AGENT, MATICO, GRIMAULT and CO.—Paria, This new remedy is prepared from the leaves of a Peruvian pepper shrub, called Matico, and curee promptly and afrailibly without any fear of inflammatory results. The great majority of physicians in Paria (and especially Dr. Ricord), Rassis, Germany, and New York, now use no other remedy. Full directions accompany each bottle and packet, or an explanatory treatise will be sent post free.

Asthma. — Asthma. — Asthma. — INDIAN CIGAR-ETTES.—Prepared with the essence of Canabis Indica. — Wonderful results have been obtained from the use of these cigarettes, by persons suffering from asthma, and other complaints of the respiratory organs. N.B.—All the above medical preparations are accompanied by instructions as to the manner in which they are to be taken.

ROOD AND CO.'S CORN SOLVENT.

Wonderful Cure of a Porty Years' Corn.

174, Gerirude-street, Fistroy, 1864.

Sir,.—Being soverely tried by a large and most troublesome corn on she top of one of my toes for NORN THAN PORTY YEARS, and having had it twice pretended to be taken out, and I have often tried either means to dissolve our union, but all in vain. I was at length indused by your recommendation to try "Hoof's Corn Solvent," which, I am happy to say, is five days from its being first applied, enabled me mosenceosafully to triumph over my unwelcome companion; to get rid of which I have several times had serious thoughts of having the toe amputated. I am now, after waiting ten er twelve months to see if it would return, entirely free from all pain it occasioned, as well as any appearance of its return. I have recommended it to some of my family and friends, who have been equally successful in removing these old and troublesome intruders. You have my full sanction te use this as you please, for I consider the Solvent to be a great beon, and a sure and safe remedy for corns if properly applied the full time and in the manner prescribed.

HARTLEY KEROSENE OIL AND PARAPPINE COMPANY'S "TIMBER PRESERVING OIL," for the preservation of wood from wet and dry sot, the ravages of sea worms, white ants, &c.

This oil has now an established reputation, being used by the colonial Government on bridges, railway sleepers, &c., all timber prepared by it being rendered thoroughly impor-vious to the statech of white ants and other insects. In Invita the same description of oil is universally used-for SIJ EFERS, TELEGRAPH POLES, &c., and is found there to be the best preservative of timber ever yet introduced. found there to be the best preservative or timps were partitived.

The attention of builders and private individuals is directed to the advantages to be secured by its use for building imbers, fencing, &c., whereby great durability is insured at a very small cost.

This oil will be supplied in hogsbeads, direct from the works, at a price (including casks) which will be regulated according to quantity, AROTHER MONSTER NUMBER YROM THE LITTLE RYEER.—Mr. Doyle, storekeeper at Sergeant's Point, Little River, brought into Braidwood on Monday last a lump of gold, weighing no less than ninety-eight ounces, which he had purchased at his store on Saturday night last from a party of men who were working at Broad Gully, where they said they had fallen upon this nugget. Mr. Doyle kindly brought it down to our office, says the Dispatch, to let use et al. In appearance it resembled a common iron stone boulder, with the exception that in place of the red solour of burnt frontsone, it has a dasky yellow that, but it bears the rame indications of having been under the action of fire. Internaised with the gold are piaces of quartz. From its specific gravity old miners capable of judging of the quantity of gold contained in nuggets of this description, who have seen it, are of opinion that it will not lose more than 20 ounces when separated from the stone, while others are of opinion that it will not lose the stone, while others are good number of persons have gone to look at it. In addition to this nugget Mr. Doyle purchased last week fifty ounces of time gold. This, with the quantity that must have been purchased by other store-keepers on the river, renders it apparent that the yield of gold on those diggings is very great according to the population.

THE VISIT OF THE MINISTER FOR LANDS AND THE

gold on these diggings is very great according to the population.

THE VISIT OF THE MINISTER FOR LANDS AND THE MINISTER FOR WORKS.—A telegram, says the Bradecoed Dispatel of the 13th, was received in town yeaterday from the Under-Secretary for Lands, addressed to Mr. James Rodd, who is now in Sydney, to the following effect:—"The Honorable the Secretary for Lands, accompanied by the Honorable the Secretary for Works, will be at Bungonia on Wednesday night, the 13th instant." They may be expected to remain at Bungonia to-night and reach here to—theorem were sign. As it is understood that the object of the visit of these two members of the Government is that of deciding upon the best site for the proposed bridge over the Shoulhaven, it will doubtlem be considered becoming that a few of the leading residents shall go out to meet them only their arrival, and some steps should be taken on the part of the public, not only to give them a fitting reception, but to consult with them upon the object of their visit and other matters of importance to the district coming within the operation of their departments.

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1868.

Assuming, as we have a right to do, after re-peated decisions of the highest Courts, that a Legislature created by statute is limited to its provisions, and that no constructive powers car be assigned, excepting such as are necessary for the performance of its duties, the question may come before us too suddenly for proper exami nation, "Is it necessary that there should be nation, "Is it necessary that there should be any additional powers conferred by law, and, if so, what?" The example of Vactoria has shewn a Ministry in the ascendant defying every law of government, but armed with powers under law which enable them to threaten and inflict summary punishment upon all and inflict summary punishment upon all who hold epinions different from their own They had hardly possessed themselves of this power before it was exercised in a manner so atrocious as to exalt the sufferers in public estimation, and render the tyranny of their oppressors as contemptible as hateful. New bodies are not slow to put in action all the powers they possess. That calm reserve which has maintained the dignity of the British Parliament, and enabled it to hold the powers they possess. its tremendous prerogatives all but unquestioned is not to be expected of men who consider every weapon useful in party war, and who never recognise any bounds to their vengeance but their power to inflict it. There was, indeed, one occasion when the contest between the Courts and the House of Commons excited universal concern. The printer of reports ordered by the House of Commons was prosecuted for libel. His plea was the authority of the House. The Court set aside this ples, and the contest, as our readers may remember, continued for several years. It was, however, settled rather by compromise was, however, settled rather by compromise securing a practical impunity to parties acting in good faith. No one could doubt the possibility of such powers being abused. At the same time it is difficult to see how the business of the Legislature could be conducted if the circulation of reports were obstructed. This was a clear recessive. were obstructed. This was a clear nece of the position. But beyond this, the House of Commons has scarcely ever taken action for many years past. People are allowed to say whatever they think proper, and the Courts of Law are open to those who are segrieved, whether the Government or a private citizen. This resource is found to be sufficient—so much so that "the practice of Parkiament" has rather enlarged the rights of publishers than repressed them. But would this be the case with a colonial Parliament? Would not the very first offence set in motion all the machinery of privilege and law at the public expense and crush an offender? Would not summary powers of imprisonment be carried out with a similar insolence and severity to that which we of the position. But beyond this, the House solence and severity to that which we saw exercised in a neighbouring colony? A remark of the SOLICITOR-GENERAL represent A remark of things, we will not say one already realised. "The Assembly," said the learned counsel, "may at one time be composed of the very primates of the community; at an-other, of the scum of the earth; or at another it may consist of a mixture of both.' precisely because the character of such an Assembly is uncertain, and tends, in the fierce contests of faction, to deteriorate and become worse in its collective character than in its constituent parts, that the community should be extremely chary in granting it summary powers, or giving it, except for the maintenance of order within its own walls, coercive jurisdiction not checked and moderated by the intervention of the Courts, and clearly defined by law. That the Judges are disposed at all times to restrain the excesses of individuals times to restrain the excesses of individuals acting against branches of the State is one proper characteristic of their position. But at the same time they have commonly been the expounders and defenders of the principles of liberty. They have usually interposed a strong arm againt the vengeance of power. They have distinguished between what is a reasonable indulgence in the fervour of discussion, and what would be a toleration of teges, and to increase its power. It is thought to be an honourable service to exhibit its pre-rogatives, and widen by explaining them. This is so common that it is set down by all political philosophers as one of the rocks of national institutions, and requiring the utmost vigilance of those who see in the careful distribution of those who see in the careful distribution of forces the only protection against their abuse. While an all engrossing and irresistible aristocracy ruled over England it was an act of patriotism to enlarge the rights of the House of Commons. But is not this state of things changed? May there not come a time even in England when the passions of that grand inquest of the nation shall deprive it of all self-control, and when it will require the force of every other branch of shall deprive it of all self-control, and when it will require the force of every other branch of the State to prevent its absorbing all powers to itself? Far be it from us to grudge to the Assembly anything necessary for the maintenance of its own dignity and the quiet performance of its own duty. The right to turn out of the House (not unseat) members who are disorderly is so clear that no non-would think of disorderly is so clear that no one would think of disputing it. But even if the power were as-sumed to expel a member for an act deemed an offence by the Assembly, and not defined clearly and distinctly by law, what would be the result? The party in the ascendency would deprive their opponents of their seats, and thus a con-stitutional opposition would be defeated and the ends of Parliamentary government utterly frus-trated. That which bath been done, says trated. That which bath been done, says a wise man, is that which shall be done: and "there is nothing new under the sun." Judged by its Constitution this state of things is actually occurring in America—there resulting from special causes and being in some degree inevitable. But no true and enlightened patriot will forget that to confer indefinite nowers which no one can question. and enlightened patriot will forget that to confer indefinite powers which no one can question upon any existing celonial body, is to place in jeopardy the freedom of the people and to fur-nish an instrument by which the public voice may be stiffed and the exposure of abuses followed by instantaneous vengeance. The reckless manner in which the liberty of the subject is sometimes sacrificed by sudden laws, and even under generous impulses, has furand even under generous impulses, has fur-nished innumerable precedents for those who desire to follow in an evil path. In no case however, has this fecklesaness shown itself more conspicuously than in the passing of the law by which the Victorian Legislature has assumed all the privileges of the House of Commons,—privileges which no statute has ever defined and which no Gourt is in a condition to interpret. But a law once passed, however inconsistent with British legislation, can only be repealed by the same authority that conferred or exercised the enacting power. An Act not so extravagant, but nevertheless sufficiently dangerous, was passed by the South Australian Legislature, and, recently, theless sufficiently dangerous, was passed by the South Australian Legislature, and, recently a person was threatened with the penalties of contempt for not disclosing the private affairs of his office! He was saved not by the inherent injustice of the threat, but by the superior strength of the party he represented. Thus it would always be. Such laws are strong against the weak, and weak against the strong. Moning weak, and weak against the strong. Men in favour may evade them, and men in power abuse them, and speaking at large, the edge of this formidable axe is turned towards the conductors of the Press and the benches of Opposition.

THE interview between Mr. GLADSTONE and the representatives of the Trades Unions, and was sought for with the intentiwhich was sought for with the intention of correcting his erroneous impressions, did not partake very much of the nature of a discussion after all. Mr. POTTER made an opening speech, Mr. Gladstone made another; one or two questions were asked, and the remaining delegates severally made some brief remarks, and there the interview ended. There was little more than a declaration of opinions on both sides; there was no probing of the issues down to their roots. The remarks turned almost exclusively on the restrictive regulations adopted by Trades Unions, such as limitation of apprentices, the refusal to work with non-union men, the minimum scale of wages, and the objections to piece work. In respect to these the delegates urged two lines of argument, which were somewhat in two lines of argument, which were somewhat in-opposition to each other. For first they argued that the objectionable regulations were not universal, being inapplicable in some trades, and not adopted in others; and secondly they defended them in principle. If the second argument was felt to be reliable the first should have been abandoned. If the restrictive rules far as possible, and if, whether good or not, they are popular with the artisans, it is certain that they will be gradually enforced as opportunity offers. The existing limitations on the practices referred to are therefore unimportant to the inquiry, and to have put them forward indicates some sense of conscious weakness. The point to be discussed is whether they are intrinsically good.

Mr. Роттев contended that Trades' Unions Mr. P'OTTER contended that Trades' Unions were not in restraint of trade, but only in restraint of the overweening tendencies which spring from the conscious possession of large resources in capital and machinery. He contended that a limitation of apprentices was necessary to secure skilled workmen, and asserted that in trades where there were no limitations the work was inferior. A superabundance of apprentices drove the skilled workman out of the country, while the competition of inferior labour led to the aocial competition of inferior labour led to the social and physical degradation of the men. The minimum rate of wages, too, he contended was quite fair because the great majority in every trade were average workmen. Good masters did not object to it, the complaint came from the undercutters. A contract is taken at a low to get cheap labour, and the result was an infe-rior style of work. He condemned the tendency of piecework too as putting the labourer under the screw, for when the master saw that by extra hard or prompt work high wages were made, it was an excuse for cutting down the terms. This led to over-exertion, over-hours, and injury to the health. Mr. Potter's speech was throughout practical. He had the good sense was throughout practical. He and the good sense to abstain from indulging in generalisations or arguing from abstract principles. His appeal was always to facts, and the proper reply was obviously to ascertain whether those facts were as represented, and whether they sustained the principles based upon them.

It was this which made the conference so ineffective as helping towards any settle-ment of the points in dispute, for the antagopower. They have distinguished between what is a reasonable indulgence in the fervour of discussion, and what would be a toleration of malicious calumny. Without referring to any particular Judge—for of course there are variations in their tendencies—we believe it would be hard to find one who would not be a safer depositary of coercive and punitive authority than politicians, animated and often embittered by the conflict of parties.

There is a strong tendency on the part of persons who belong to a body to exalt its privileges, and to increase its power. It is thought to be an honourable service to exhibit its now. And this was quite distinct from slavish over work, for he was only assuming that women and lads did a fair amount of work. He referred to the rule that a woman in painting porcelain was not allowed a "rest" for her hand, and to the rule among masons, that stone which is quarried may not be "dressed" in the quarry. He said it was a rule worthy of savages. It was refusing to make God's gifts go as far as they were meant to go. So again, the rule that lime-washing should only be done by plasterers, the denounced as a war against labour. He said he did not think it necessary to con-demn violence, as that would not be defended. And he would not condemn strikes, though he thought it an extreme remedy, and one that thought it an extreme remedy, and one that should be very carefully used. The refusal to work with non-union men he also thought an extreme right. But he quite admitted the right of combination, and the right of men to secure the best practicable terms for their labour, though he doubted the policy of combining benefit societies and trade societies in the same organisation.

None of the subsequent speakers replied in form to Mr. GLADSTONE's arguments. In fact they seem to have come prepared rather to state they seem to have come prepared rather to state their own case than to refute his arguments, although to convince him was nominally the object of the conference. But Mr. LAWRENCE, a tailer, said that though there were 22,000 men and 10,000 women employed in the tailoring trade, there were not 5000 skilled artisans, and the slop trade paid four-pence halfpenny for ten hours' work. This speaker was disposed to be a little more theoretical that Mr. Potter. He argued that if the labourer earned more wages, and took more labourer earned more wages, and took more out of the profits of the employer, his expendi-ture would go to emplsy more labour—that when a man could not make wages at his trade when a man could not make wages at his trade he brought his wife and children into it to eke out a living—that capital, when unproductive, destroys nothing, while labour unproductive consumed labour, and that a capitalist could alter his investment in five minutes, while a labourer required five years to change his em-ployment. How ill-considered assertions of this kind were, and how open to contradiction unless separate them. This last would be rather a curious doctrine to maintain in a colony, and curious doctrine to maintain in a colony, and especially on one of our gold fields, where a man has sometimes to be jack of all trades, and where the more versatile he is the more likely he is to succeed. It is pretty clear, too, that any attempt to regulate the supply and demand of labour can only be successful when employment is pretty steady, and over that the Unions have no direct control.

Mr. Lewis a brushmaker, introduced.

over that the Unions have no direct control.

Mr. Lewis, a brushmaker, introduced an important consideration into the discussion, by stating that his Union, numbering scarcely 1400 men, had, between March and Beptember, paid £1780 to keep their surplus hands when out of employment. The statement is closely related to the question of pauperism, for if each trade were to keep its own news out of the statement. were to keep its own poor out of a tax on itself, the general community would be so far lightened of its burden. Mr. DUNNING repeated Mr. POTTER's argu-

Mr. Dunning repeated Mr. Potter's argument in favour of a minimum wage. He contended that most healthy men were nearly alike in physical capability, and that a minimum wage prevented incompetent men from being employed. But it is skill as well as physical capability that is concerned, and all men are not alike in that; and when there is a great demand for labour, employers take on all the hards they can get; and if superior men can claim and get an extra wage, why should not an inferior man be paid a lower wage. If the standard is to be departed from at one end of the scale simply out of regard to the quantity standard is to be departed from at one end of the scale simply out of regard to the quantity and quality of the work, why should not the same considerations cause a similar departure from the standard at the other end of the scale? The doctrine of a minimum rigidly carried out also involves the doctrine of maximum, or rather of a uniform rate.

We do not imagine that the conference resulted in the conversion of Mr. GLADSTONE to Trades Union principles, but it perhaps enabled him to re-study them from the point of view of the artisans, and he may take an opportunity of re-delivering himself on the subject. It is of re-delivering himself on the subject. It is only by discussion that the truth can be elicited, and the more distinctly the Trades Unions bring their principles to the bar of reason, the more quickly what is good in them will receive a general recognition, and what is bad will be exposed to condemnation.

District Court,—His Honor Judge Macfarland sat in this Court yesterday, and disposed of a large number of applications for write of cs. so. In some cases affidavits were tendered, but the persons by whom they were made were not present to be examined. If necessary, and it was not shown that there was anything to prevent their attendance. His Honor therefore rejected the affidavits. The motion for new trial was postponed for a week, and the interpleades suit was withdrawn.

MANSON AND ANOTHER V. LEVY.

This was an issue under an interpleader order by Mr. Justice Hargrave to determine the ownsership of certain goods levied upon by defendant. The plaintiffs on the record were Mosers. William Manson and Robert Gray, trustees of the assigned estate of Mesars. Henry Hart and Lewis Benjamin, of Yass. The defendant Mr. David L. Levy, an attorney of the Supreme Court, was a judgment creditor of Mesars. Hart and Benjamin, and had issued execution for £167 9s. 7d., besides Sheriff's and haliliff's costs. The writt of $\tilde{F}_0$, was ledged and tested, i.e. lodged in the Sheriff's office authoniteated by proper signature, &c., on the 8rd of March last, and the levy was made on the 6th of March. The deed of assignment was executed by the assignmes and the trustees on the 22nd of February, and was, as required by law, duly attesfed by a Justice (or Justices) of the Pasce. A notice that such deed had been executed and was awaiting signature by creditors, was published in the System Morning Herald of the 2nd of March, and in the Government Gazette of the 3rd of March. The deed was duly stamped and registered on the 6th of March, and in the Government Gazette of the 3rd of March. The action of defendant was commenced on the 6th of March, and in the Government Gazette of the 3rd of March. The action of defendant was commenced on the 6th of March, and in the Government Gazette of the 3rd of March. The action of defendant was commenced on the 6th of Arch. The action of defendant was execution was signed on the 2nd March; and execution was such thereon, and attempted to be enforced, on the dates already mentioned. The question was whether the defendant's right to enforce this execution. The defendant sight to enforce his execution. The determination of this question was chiefly dependant upon points of law.

On Monday last, Dr. Polding, the Roman Carbolic Strength of the Central Criminal Court, Mr. Benjiami Lee pleaded guilty to having assaulted on the spot in aid of the building fund.

On the 11th, at the Central Criminal Court, Mr. Benjiami Lee pleaded guilty to having assaulted on the copy in all and o joins succi aim in the Supreme Court for £97 8s., the amount due to them. A plea of never indubted was entered for the defendant, who, before the case came an for trial, returned to the colony. He called upon Mr. Thorne in reference to the matter and tried to settle it, acknowledging the debt, but stating that he was unable to pay it all at once. A few days afterwards he met Mr. Thorne again with some other creditors, and offered to pay 2s. 6d. in the £ at first, and the balance afterwards, but Mr. Thorne said he had been put to so much trouble and expense that he would not agree to such a settlement of the matter. Gale then got excited, and said that if Thorne wanted law he would give him enough of it—that he would go through the Insolvent Court and not pay Thorne three halfpence. A few days afterwards, Thorne and Co. obtained judgment against defendant, applied for a co. so, and had him arrested. In the gaol defendant made an affidavit before the governor of the gaol, stating the nature of the debt for which he was detained, the reasons for his not paying it, &c. On that affidavit defendant was discharged from custody. In it he made the statements set forth in the indictment, viz., that he had not put his creditors to any expense that could have been avoided, and that he had never acknowledged the debt to Mr. Thorne in the presence of Meiklejohn. These were stated to be false allegations, and the defendant was in consequence straigned to answer them. For the defence it was contended that defendant had not put his creditors to expense, the plea of never indebted having been filed in his absence, and that the assertion in the affidavit that he had never acknowledged the debt, was a mistake arising from the deafnoss and imperfect comprehension of the defendant.

The jury retired, and after an absence of an hour and a half returned a vertice of guilty.

The prisoner was remanded for sentence.

SECOND COURT.

Before his Honor Mr. Justice FAUCETT.

FRAUDLIERT INSOLVENCY.

George Houghton, an insolvent, committed for trial by the Chief Commissioner of Insolvent Estates, was charged with concealing, embezaling, &c., his cetate, prior and subsequent to his insolvency, to the amount of £300. There were several counts in the indictment comprehending this charge.

The defendant pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. Joseph Leary. Mr. Butler conducted the prosecution.

The insolvency was proved by the Registrar, and Mr. Humphery, the official assignee, gave evidence of a statement made by defendant, to the effect that a few days prior to the sequestration of his estate, he had paid the sum of £300 to a person named J. W. Smith, of Grange, a builder and contractor, from whom, as he said, he had borrowed that sum about eighteen months previously. He had asserted that this £300 was refunded to Smith in two payments, one of £190 and the other of £110, and in proof of the assertion two receipts for those sums signed by Smith were produced. It appeared by the defendant's pass-book that the sum of £190 had been drawn out of the bank at one time, and that two other sums amounting to £103 had been drawn out subsequently. Smith was called by the Crown, and denied that he had ever lent defendant money, or that defendant had paid him £300; but he admitted that the two receipts which were produced were signed by him. Smith said he had been on intimate terms with defendant for some time, and had at his request cashed a cheque for £190, and two other cheques amounting altogether to £103 for defendant, and the Parametria-street Branch of the Bank of New South Wales. From what defendant asid, Smith understood that he was changing his account from one bank to the other, on account of his baving had quarrel with a clerk in the Commercial Bank, and defendant, on the defendent's having his account from one bank to the other, on account of hi

A NEVER-FAILING SUPPLY OF WATER renders the property admirably adapted for any manufacturing purpose.

THE PICK OF WAVERLEY. VALUABLE BUILDING ALLOTMENTS, fronting the COOGRE BAY ROAD, nearly opposite the CHARING CROSS HOTEL, and close to the Pac-tory of Mr. James Vickery.

Title, unquestionable. Terms at sale. AYNES, TREEVE, and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at MORT'S ROOMS, Pit-street, at 11 o'clock, on WEDNESDAY, 3rd June, The few remaining unsold allotments, situate on the Congree Bay Road:—

One allotment, having 25 feet frontage, by a depth of 190 feet, to a lane at the rear, adjoining the property of Mr. Edwards.

The other 6 allotments are a subdivision of the block adjoining the estate of Mr. Vickery, and have frontage of from 30 to 40 feet, by depths of 160 to 222 feet.

In no part of Waverley is property likely to become more valuable for business purposes than the position occupied by the above allotments. The decided improvement already nanifested, and the growing wants arising out of the extensive operations at Mr. Vickery's Factory, must inevitably tend to increase the value of land in that particular losslity. To those who are on the look-out for a really good allotment at Waverley, the present opportunity should not be lost.

Plan on view at the Rooms.
